HGH India: Reinventing and Reshaping the Future of Home

As HGH India enters its 20th edition, the Indian home industry stands at a defining moment. Consumers have evolved. Markets have expanded. Categories are transforming. The future demands a new approach.

A new generation of home buyers is driving purchase decisions. Their aspirations, lifestyles and expectations are fundamentally different. They seek brands over commodities, experiences over products, and innovation over convention.

At the same time, the Indian home market is being reshaped by:

- Rapid growth of branded and premium home products.
- Expansion of retail and distribution into Tier 2 and Tier 3 markets.
- Emerging categories powered by new materials, technology and design.
- Rising demand for convenience, wellness, sustainability and smart living.
- Changing retail formats, merchandising strategies and omnichannel engagement.
- Accelerating growth of premium and luxury segments.

To stay relevant, retailers, brands and manufacturers must anticipate tomorrow’s consumer - not react to them.

With trend forecasts, new knowledge platforms, innovation-focused experiences and deeper industry engagement, HGH India continues to lead from the front - connecting businesses with ideas, products and opportunities that will define the next phase of growth in the Indian home market.

Reinvented Zones, Reinvented Opportunities

The home market is changing rapidly. New consumers, new categories, new retail formats and new growth markets are creating fresh opportunities - and new challenges.

Traditional product classifications no longer reflect how today's consumers discover, evaluate and buy products for their homes. Increasingly, purchasing decisions are influenced by lifestyles, aspirations, technology, convenience, wellness, sustainability and personal expression.

To align with these market realities, HGH India 2027 introduces a reinvented zone architecture designed around contemporary consumer needs, emerging growth opportunities and evolving retail formats.

The new structure enables visitors to discover products and solutions more intuitively, while helping exhibitors position themselves within broader consumer and lifestyle contexts beyond simple product categories.

Trend Forecasts

A flagship initiative by HGH India of forecasting design and fashion trends for homes is based on extensive consumer and design research.

The trends predict how India's consumers will redefine what their homes should look, feel and mean to them through distinctive themes, addressed to different consumer segments. Each theme articulates a specific colour, material, pattern, and emotion, drawing from Indian cultural roots, global influences, and contemporary values. It is built for everyone operating across the home industry: manufacturers aligning product development with emerging consumer cues; retailers curating collections to match shifting market moods; interior designers and architects referencing concepts for spatial storytelling; and consumers seeking reflection and inspiration in their surroundings.

The Trend Forecast for 2027-28 will help in designing new products and merchandising strategy for retailers.

Trends 2027-28
